

Carroll County

Carroll County surrounds the north-south midpoint of the state's eastern border. Established in 1840, the county was named for Charles Carroll of Carrollton, Virginia, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. It adjoins Maine along a 53-mile, almost perfectly straight, line. About a quarter of the county is within the White Mountain National Forest. A ten-mile long thumb of land encompassing Crawford Notch and Hart's Location juts out between Coös and Grafton Counties. There are no cities in Carroll County, the only county so lacking.

Carroll County contains 931.1 square miles of land area and 61.4 square miles of inland water area. Based on the 2010 Census population, the population density is 51.4 persons per square mile. Carroll County includes 18 towns and one unincorporated place, Hale's Location. The county seat is Ossipee.

Population Trends: The third smallest county in population, Carroll County is about the same in square miles as Merrimack County, but the population density is about a third of that for Merrimack. Between 1970 and 1980, Carroll County experienced a major population growth spurt, increasing by 50.6 percent. That was the highest rate of population growth for any county for any decennial period since 1950. The growth rate for Carroll County was the highest among the counties between 1990 and 2000 at 23.3 percent. At 50.3 years, Carroll has the highest median age in New Hampshire.
