1 Occupation, SOC Code, Description

The occupation title, the Standard Occupational Classification (SOC) code, and a brief description of work tasks and activities. Actual responsibilities of the job may differ from the description, depending on the employer, educational level, and related work experience.

2 New Hampshire Occupational Projections

Estimated and projected employment, and average annual job openings are shown for each occupation. ('n' indicates data are confidential.)

Employment

- 2020: Estimated number of workers who were employed in 2020
- 2030: Projected number of workers who will be employed in 2030

Average Annual Job Openings

- Exits: Job openings created when a worker permanently exits the labor force, to retire, to attend school, to care for family, or a similar reason.
- Transfers: Job openings created when workers transfer to employment in another job family, such as promotion to a managerial position.
- Total: Estimated average annual new job openings (average annual change, 2020 to 2030), plus labor force exits, plus occupational transfers.

3 New Hampshire Future Outlook

An indicator of expected employment prospects, based on the projected percent change from 2020 to 2030 (growth rate) and the projected number of annual job openings. There are four categories:

- ↑ Very Favorable: high projected growth and high projected openings
- ↗ Favorable: high projected growth with a low number of openings, low projected growth with a very high number of openings, or average projected growth and average openings
- ↘ Less Favorable: low projected growth and average openings or high projected growth and very low openings
- ↓ Not Favorable: negative projected growth (declining) and very low or no openings

4 2021 Entry Level and Median Wage

The 2021 entry level and median hourly wage rates in New Hampshire. For occupations without a standard work week, such as teachers, the annual entry level and median salary is shown. Actual pay depends on the employer, education, and experience. Based on Occupational Employment and Wage Statistics survey data. Note: n/a indicates data are not available.

7 Holland Interests

The Holland Interest Profile is a two- or three-letter code indicating the interest profile of workers in an occupation. A match between your interests and that of workers in an occupation can mean more career satisfaction. The Holland interest types are Realistic, Investigative, Artistic, Social, Enterprising, and Conventional. Interest profiles are represented by the first letter of the six interest types (RIASEC). For more on Holland interest types, see Career Exploration by Holland Interest Codes at www.nhes.nh.gov/elmi/career/career-assess.htm.

8 Career Cluster

The National Career Clusters Framework has identified 16 career clusters, which organize occupations into groups based on industry, skills, or products. Each cluster is further divided into pathways corresponding to educational courses and training programs leading to career advancement opportunities. The primary career cluster for each occupation is listed.
