

New Hampshire Community Profiles is your one-stop location for information on the Granite State's cities and towns

Do you know the population of the town you live in? Ever wonder who the largest employer in your town is? Have you ever needed to know the enrollment rate of the schools in your town for planning purposes? Do you know how many residents in your town have at least a bachelor's degree? Do you know your town's annual budget?

Join the thousands of people who have already used this online publication to find the huge amount of data compiled on New Hampshire's 234 incorporated cities and towns in the state.

Much of the data was supplied by local municipal offices, without whose assistance this online publication would not be possible. Other sources of the data include the US Census Bureau, NH Office of Energy and Planning, NH Department of Education, NH Department of Revenue Administration, and New Hampshire Employment Security's Economic and Labor Market Information Bureau.

An easy way to find the answers to these question and more is to access the 2004 update of New Hampshire Community Profiles now available online at:
