

Internet use in New Hampshire

Half of all granite-staters are e-buying

According to the New Hampshire 2000 Survey conducted in June by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center, more than three-quarters of New Hampshire households own at least one computer. Almost two-thirds of the respondents said they used their home computers to access the Internet. Just over forty percent say they access the Internet from work.

So, what are Granite Staters doing on the Internet? Some are surfing, some are chatting, and some are shopping! Over 50 percent of the respondents said they have purchased something over the Internet. More than 40 percent of them said they had done so in the last six months.
